St. Paul Monthly Messenger

September 2015

"We are God's servants, saved by grace, through faith, commissioned to share the Word of Christ to all."

A Message from Pastor Abatelli

The September Messenger is sponsored in memory of Mike Ayotte from his family.

*God's love is not drawn out by our lovableness,
but wells up like an artesian spring
from the depth of his nature.*
John Henry Jowell

+ + + + +

I was angry and upset. The more I thought about this brother coming home, the more I was consumed by rage. Wanting just a moment where I could shake some sense into him.

How could he reject us like that? How could he waste my father's wealth? How could he leave us? Now the gall he had to come back home with nothing, after all he did.

How could my father just let him go? I loved him too. Why did he give so much to him? How could he take him back after all that messed up kid did?

Did my father realize that I was in pain too? Frustrated in how he could blow the wealth my father gave him. This boy deserved nothing back. I was by his side, never left. I slaved day and night for him. I did everything this father wanted.

I could not believe what this father did. He welcomed him home, ran to meet him, then acted as if this boy never left him. He showed that every wrong turn, every bridge burned was forgiven and gone. His return brought me no joy, even though I knew it should have. The injustice and pain filled me as this father threw him a party. There was no way I would go after all he did. His actions were inexcusable.

I withdrew from the party. I did not care that it hurt this father or this brother. I found myself alone in what I created for myself. I was filled with the filth of resentment and ingratitude. It turned bitter in my mouth. This was unfair, my heart ached out. How could this father be so loving to that boy who turned his back to me?

When this father came to me I gave him a few choice words, for this son of his did all those wasteful and painful actions. How could I welcome this boy back? This father never let me have a party with my friends! I never left his side!

Then, to my surprise, he said something I did not expect. As I used words to disassociate myself with this father and boy, he called me son. Was I still a son to him? Would he welcome me back like my brother? Is that how my father was, that he did not care what happened to him? Was he loving, to the point that he would face all hardships for us? Was that love he had inside still there for me? Was it here for me even when I turned my back on the love he showed to my brother?

Yes, it was always there. Never leaving, and could never be taken away.

+ + + + +

Our loving Father in heaven is the same way. No matter what reckless streak we have been on, no matter how resentful we are for Him welcoming the wanderers, His love remains.

Our God is a God that while we were still sinners Christ died for us Rm. 5:8. Christ paid the price on the cross so that He could see that face sin stole from Him. To see that face He was missing so much to see. He died and rose so that He could wrap His loving arms around us. So that we could be welcomed back to the place where we belong. For His love has never left us.

That is how deep the Father's love is for us, for we all are justified in Him because of who He is.

General Editor Edward A. Engelbrecht, cph 2014, p. 531 ( Ephesians ).

Ephesians Application – Ch 1 - Pride tempts us to trust in our commitment to God; doubt makes us worry that we are not committed enough. God's power is not automatically good news. It terrifies sinners, but it comforts us who know His love for us in Christ. Jesus blesses us spiritually by leading us to repent of sinful pride by the Law and calming our worried hearts through the Gospel.

Chs 2-3 - Today's self-help culture tempts us to try to do it all ourselves. Though our personal credentials are important, our service in the church is based on God's gifts and calling, which stem from the Gospel. Study of God's Word naturally combines with prayer and praise in the Divine Service, where Christ's gifts are given out, and we receive them with thanksgiving.

Chs 4:1-5:21 – Modern individualism and consumerism make it easy to treat the Church as “all about me.” Thanks be to God, the Church is all about Jesus, who provides for our salvation and edification. As Luther explains the Ten Commandments in the Catechism, the Law both forbids sinful behavior (“shall not”) and urges good works (“shall”). As we inevitably fail to live up to such demands, forgiveness preserves and restores the harmony of the Church. In our struggle against temptations, we can rely on Christ's Word and Spirit to lead us.

Ch 5:22-6:24 – We are inclined today to view our marriages selfishly: what can I get out of it? Instead, we should consider what we can offer to our spouse and see behind each action a picture of the Gospel itself. Today, God calls us to serve Him and other people selflessly, lovingly, and conscious of our relationship to Christ. We should examine our lives and our callings. The Lord will forgive our shortcomings and strengthen us to be Christlike. In the modern world, the spiritual dimension of life is often overlooked. We view our problems—and try to solve them—in purely human terms. But the Lord works in us by His Word and Spirit.
